I am a final semester student at Universitas Kuningan, majoring in Informatics Engineering. I am passionate about technology, especially programming, with a focus on Web Development, Fullstack Development, Backend Development, and Frontend Development. I have a responsible and creative personality, and I am able to work well both in teams and individually. I have successfully completed 17 projects through school assignments, college assignments, freelance experiences, and internships. These include 2 desktop-based projects during vocational school and 15 web-based projects during fulltime, internships, freelance work, and other engagements. These projects involved technologies such as PHP, Laravel, CodeIgniter, MySQL, Google Cloud, Bootstrap, Node.js, and Next.js. Currently, I am focused on programming and have gained significant experience in developing reliable web applications and innovative solutions. One of my most notable projects involved creating a secure and scalable web application that improved client workflow efficiency by 70%. My main interest lies in software development, and my career goal is to continuously enhance my programming skills and contribute to the creation of cutting-edge technological solutions. I am very enthusiastic about joining a dynamic and progressive team where I can continue to learn and grow in an inspiring work environment.
